Introduction

In 2015, GEXcel International Collegium activities proceeded well in all main arenas. One new GEXcel research field, Gender, Violence and Society, was established.

GEXcel hosted over 20 visiting scholars and guest doctoral students from Europe, Asia, Australia and North America during the year for different periods. During 2015, GEXcel scholars published books and book chapters through international publishers (Cambridge Scholars; Palgrave; Policy Press; Sage; Springer; Routledge), articles in international Gender Studies and related journals (including Body & Society; Culture, Health and Sexuality; Ethics & the Environment; Feminism & Psychology; Feminist Review; Gender and Education; Gender, Place and Culture; Hypatia; International Journal of Men's Health; Journal of Critical Realism; Journal of Marketing Management; Lambda Nordica; Men and Masculinities; NORMA; Qualitative Research in Organizations and Management; Social Semiotics; Somatechnics), as well as numerous research and policy reports. Furthermore, the Swedish Gender Studies journal Tidskrift för genusvetenskap, the oldest and largest Nordic journal within Gender Studies, NORMA: International Journal of Men and Masculinities and the journal Somatechnics are edited/co-edited within GEXcel. The book series Routledge Advances in Feminist Theory and Intersectionality is also co-edited within GEXcel.

Over 20 GEXcel research events were organised in partner universities. Additionally, GEXcel scholars were involved in co-organising several international events, or presented as keynotes or invited presenters at a large number of international and national conferences and other scientific events, and were involved in various expert tasks nationally and internationally. The social outreach activities were also lively, targeting various national and regional administrative bodies, NGOs and the media. GEXcel partner units submitted funding applications to European and all major Swedish funders, and received a good amount of grants from both.

The International Research Association of Institutions of Advanced Gender Studies (RINGS), initiated by GEXcel, expanded and now has 40 member institutions. RINGS consolidated its activities with a small conference and General Assembly in November 2015 hosted by the Gender and Science Unit of the Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic.

At the end of 2015, Professor Anna G. Jónasdóttir finished serving as the GEXcel Co-director at Örebro University, and was succeeded by Docent Sofia Strid. In May 2015, Anna G. Jónasdóttir was awarded an Honorary Doctorate by the University of Iceland. Magnus Åberg, the GEXcel Research Co-ordinator at Karlstad University, left GEXcel for new tasks and was substituted by Wibke Straube.

In 2015 GEXcel sadly lost a valued collaborator, Dr. Marie Nordberg, the Co-director of GEXcel at Karlstad University, after a long-term illness. A memorial workshop for Marie was organised in October. Marie will be sorely missed by family, friends and colleagues.

Background

In 2006, the Swedish Research Council granted 20 million SEK to establish a Centre of Gender Excellence (GEXcel) at the inter-university Institute of Thematic Gender Studies (GI) at Linköping University and Örebro University organised and defined by a number of thematic foci. Two international peer evaluations, organised by the Swedish Research Council, praised its research, publications and ability to attract excellent national and international scholars within the framework of a number of cutting edge research themes.

Against this background, the GEXcel International Collegium for Advanced Transdisciplinary Gender Studies was established on a more permanent basis in 2012. The same year, the Gender Institute expanded to include Karlstad University, and the GEXcel International Collegium is now a three-university research collaboration including Tema Genus and the Division of Gender and Medicine at Linköping University (LiU), the Centre for Feminist Social Studies (CFS) and Gender Studies at Örebro University (ORU), and the Centre for Gender Studies (CGF) at Karlstad University (KaU).

The aims of the GEXcel International Collegium are:

- To become a hub for Nordic, European and international research on transdisciplinary Gender Studies;
- To develop transnational, intersectional and transformative gender research;
- To provide a research infrastructure for both self-funded and funded visiting scholars of excellence;
- To become a meeting place for different generations of excellent gender scholars, and to support promising junior scholars committed to a career in Gender Studies;
- To secure close collaboration between the Collegium and international research training initiatives within the field of Gender Studies;
- To secure closer collaboration between the Collegium and similar Centres internationally;
- To develop a global association of such kindred centres of advanced Gender Studies, provisionally known as the Research International Network of Centres of Advanced Gender Studies (RINGS);
- To provide a long-term base for the book series Routledge Advances in Feminist Studies and Intersectionality.

2012 and 2013 can be characterised as a transition period from the GEXcel Centre of Excellence to the GEXcel International Collegium. During these years, the Collegium infrastructure was gradually set up, and the initial two-university Collegium expanded to include a third partner university, Karlstad University. The integration of Karlstad into the initial LiU-ORU cooperation was principally agreed to by the Vice Chancellors of all three universities in the beginning of the summer 2013. The renewed co-operation contract between LiU and ORU on the Gender Institute and the GEXcel Collegium, integrating KaU into the activities, was signed in September 2013.

The Collegium Executive Board was appointed and had its first meeting in September 2012 at ORU. The Board meets twice a year and consecutive meetings have been held in January 2013 (LiU), September 2013 (ORU), January 2014 (KaU), September 2014 (LiU), February 2015 (ORU), October 2015 (KaU) and February 2016 (LiU).

GEXcel Co-directors have been appointed by the Executive Board for one-year periods since 2012 (KaU since 2013). The Co-directors are Nina Lykke and Cecilia Åsberg (LiU); Liisa Husu and Sofia Strid (ORU); and Ulf Mellström (KaU). With the strategic funding allocated to each partner university by the respective universities (strategiska medel/rektorsmedel) KaU, LiU and ORU have been able to appoint part-time GEXcel Collegium Coordinators. The Coordinators are Silje Lundgren (LiU); Wibke Straube (KaU); and Dag Balkmar (ORU). The Co-directors have agreed on a division of labour and consult and meet several times per year.

An International Reference Group was set up during the spring and summer of 2013 and has been complemented with additional experts to strengthen some key competence areas. The tasks of the members of the International Reference Group are to function as a 'sounding board' for ideas on development and future directions of the activities of the GEXcel International Collegium; to serve as ambassadors (e.g. promote and inform about activities) of the GEXcel International Collegium in their respective scholarly communities and countries; to contribute to the peer review process of GEXcel visiting scholars; and to support collaborations with other excellent gender studies centres and collegiums for advanced gender research worldwide.

In return, all members of the International Reference Group have a standing invitation as visiting scholars of the GEXcel International Collegium at the universities of Karlstad, Linköping and Örebro, on the same principles as Self-Funded Visiting Scholars.

Local Advisory Boards at each partner university have also been set up. The Local Advisory Boards help to anchor the activities of the GEXcel International Collegium in the broader local milieus. Criteria for selecting visiting scholars have been set up. A website has been created (www.gexcel.org) and a graphic profile, including a logo, has been developed.

RINGS

The International Research Association of Institutions of Advanced Gender Studies (RINGS), connects leading research institutes and centres from Africa, Australia, the Americas and Europe, and aims to facilitate collaboration and contacts within gender studies across the world. Following the first preparatory meeting at Linköping in 2012, and the second and inaugural meeting of RINGS held in Örebro in 2014, the third meeting and conference, ‘Gender in/and the neoliberal university’, was held in Prague, and hosted by the Gender and Science Unit of the Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic in November 2015. It was attended by 27 representatives of 21 centres from 13 countries, with apologies from a further 11 persons from nine institutions.

There are 40 member institutions. A second Transitional Executive Committee (TEC), for the coming year was elected, from the following institutions: Fay Gale Centre, Adelaide University, Australia; Gender and Science Unit, Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic; GEXcel Collegium (Örebro University), Sweden; Department of Women’s and Gender Studies, University of the Western Cape, South Africa; Centre for Women’s Studies, University of York, UK; EDDA and RIKK, University of Iceland, Iceland; Graduate Gender Programme/Netherlands Research School, Utrecht University, the Netherlands. The following officers have been agreed for the TEC: Chairperson: Jeff Hearn (ORU); Secretary: Gabriele Griffin (York University); Treasurer: Tamara Shefer (University of Western Cape); Membership Secretary: Katerina Cidlinska (Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic).

Working groups have been created on: i. Funding; ii. Webpage and Recruitment; iii. 3. Meeting/Conferences. Since the meeting, other centres have shown further interest to join the Association.

The next meeting and conference, ‘The geopolitics of gender studies’, will be held on 16–18 November 2016 in Cape Town.

Research activities and events

The research activities of the GEXcel Collegium are organised in a number of overarching research fields. These research fields consist of several research strands, each with its own chair/s. Several on-going and planned projects can be included under one strand. Strands are of two types: either established strands, which have funding for and include existing research projects and activities, or emerging strands for planned projects and activities grounded in the GEXcel milieus. Six initial research fields were established in spring 2013, four more have been established during 2014, and one more in 2015. The ten research fields are:

- Bodily Assemblages and Queer Sexualities (est. 2013, renamed 2014)
- Critical Studies on Men and Masculinities (new 2014)
- Feminist Posthumanities (est. 2013, renamed 2014)
- Feminist Studies and Education (new 2014)
- Gender and Organisations (est. 2013)
- Gender Challenges in Knowledge Production (est. 2013)
- Intersectionality, Culture and Society (est. 2013, renamed 2014)
- Love Studies and Feminism (est. 2013, renamed 2014)
- Politics and Feminism (new 2014)
- Gender, Violence and Society (new 2015)

GEXcel research fields

Bodily Assemblages and Queer Sexualities

This research field focuses on the entanglement of corpomaterialities, affectivity and intersectional power differentials, as well as explores strategies of resistance, in particular, the role of bodies, sexualities, vulnerabilities, pleasure, pain and passions in processes of decolonisation and disidentification. It is based on the assumption that intersecting processes of resistance to and decolonialisation of hegemonic power relations cannot unfold without being nourished by strong bodily and affective sources.

Critical Studies on Men and Masculinities

Critical Studies on Men and Masculinities has been a rapidly growing area of research within gender studies and feminist studies over recent decades. By highlighting the naming and deconstruction of men and masculinities, this field contributes to gender studies on knowledge production and other GEXcel research fields. This field represents a longstanding development of national, Nordic, European and international research.

Feminist Posthumanities

This GEXcel field takes as its starting point that feminist theorising and bridge-building practices have a lot to offer the human question troubling contemporary humanities. In fact, there is longstanding feminist work on how the human is always reciprocally intertwined in intricate relationships with animals, with technology, medicine and science, with the environment and all kinds of earthly and biological forces beyond human control. Such feminist forms of more-than-human humanities enliven for instance human animal studies, feminist science studies, cultural studies, medical and environmental humanities. Various feminist, queer and anticolonial positions on the posthuman or more-than-human humanities often share in a critique of the bounded, atomistic idea of human personhood, disembodied and detached from its worldly embedding. Under the provisional heading of Feminist Posthumanities, such inter- and transdisciplinary approaches within, across and beyond the human sciences form here a lively, critical and creative field that build linkages between feminist research, natural science and medicine, postcolonial and cultural studies, queer theory, continental philosophy, ecocriticism as well as media and technoscience studies.

Feminist Studies and Education

Research within this field scrutinises how feminist studies challenge conventional academic modes of working – researching, teaching, and learning – as well as organisation. Through self-reflexive analyses of many types of feminist academic practices, this research also contributes to an enhancement of the innovative powers of the area, helping to make them go more in-depth as well as to extend them into still new areas of feminist research, teaching and learning. An important starting point is a broad understanding of the field as profiled by passionately scholarly and political endeavours aimed to critically transform the disciplines from within as well as, via multi-, inter-, trans- and postdisciplinary modes of working and organisation, to contribute to critical reconfigurations of disciplinary ways of knowledge production, teaching and learning.

Gender and Organisations

This research field builds on the rapidly expanding and multidisciplinary body of gender, diversity and organisation research, aiming to contribute to understandings of gender in society, working life and other key social arenas. It explores the gendering of organisational contexts, interactions, policies, change and interventions at micro, meso and macro levels in national, transnational and global settings. Research on gender and organisations and international and national co-operation around the research field has long roots in all three GEXcel partner universities, as have their international and national co-operations around the research theme. Research activities include both more theoretically-oriented basic research as well as more applied action-oriented approaches on a wide variety of topics.

Gender Challenges in Knowledge Production

This research field interrogates gender dynamics and gendered political economy of knowledge production within different societal, cultural, scientific and educational settings, nationally, transnationally and globally. It explores multiple arenas and actors of knowledge production, from higher education, academia, and scientific and technological organisations to educational institutions, from policy makers and institutional leaders shaping the conditions of knowledge production, to researchers, engineers and teachers, as well as recipients of education and training. Furthermore, it explores the interconnections of gendered structures and cultures of knowledge production organisations to research agendas, conceptualisations, knowledge transfer/translation and curricula.

Intersectionality, Culture and Society

Intersectionality, referring to intersections of gender/sex and other social and cultural power divisions, categorisations and identity markers such as age, class, dis/ability, ethnicity, geopolitical positioning, nationality, racialisation, religion, sexuality, species, is a central concept in contemporary gender studies. This GEXcel research field systematically brings key theoretical and methodological strands of feminist analysis of intersectionality and difference into transversal dialogue and sets up arenas for the development of analytical approaches and theoretical understandings of intersectional gender/sex, embedded and embodied in processes of socio-cultural change.

Love Studies and Feminism

This research field has been emerging internationally since the early 1990s. Especially since the beginning of the twenty-first century, and in contrast to previous reluctance in most disciplines (except literature and art history) to take love seriously as a subject of academic research, fast-growing attention to the topic of love can be seen worldwide, in many different disciplines and interdisciplinary work, among both feminist and non-feminist scholars.

Increasingly, love is now addressed in its own right instead of being translated into other terms (such as labour, care, desire, romance, trust), and a fast growing number of research activities (publications, conferences, networks, university courses) can be noted. Among feminists, love, especially sexual love and maternal love, has been a politically loaded issue for a long time, and therefore, perhaps, the subject of love as such has been even more difficult to deal with seriously than in non-feminist fields. A point of departure in this GEXcel field is that Love Studies is a heterogeneous and conflictual field of knowledge interests, and feminist theorists are internally divided as to whether and how to enter into it; also, that feminist theory and politics have much to win by broadening and deepening the study of love, partly for the same reason that have made feminists so reluctant towards the subject.

Politics and Feminism

Research on politics, political activities and power relations of various kinds have for long been central to feminist research. Understandings of what politics is, how it works and where it takes place have never been static or unified across academic communities engaging with the study of politics, be that political science itself, its many sub-disciplines (e.g. political geography, political history, political sociology), other disciplines, or the growing number of interdisciplinary studies of politics and the political. Since the late 1960s, many and diverse feminist and pro-feminist movements within and outside Academia have been actively contributing to this large, heterogeneous and contested research field.

Gender, Violence and Society

Feminist studies on violence, in its many forms, sit at the historical core of gender studies and a multitude of feminist movements (academic, civil societal, political) have actively contributed to this large heterogeneous research field. Gender, Violence and Society continues the feminist tradition on the multiple historical linkages between practice, policy and theory and interrogates the relationship between theorising, activism and the politics of and around the domain of violence. The aim of this GEXcel field is to conduct excellent research to develop feminist theories and conceptualisations of violence, including violence as a post-disciplinary research field, to develop methodologies and indicators to measure and compare the extent of violence, to develop tools and terminologies to evaluate the quality of policy on violence and to inform policy, practice and action against violence.
